

One Hundred Havens

The settlement of the Marlborough Sounds

HELEN BEAGLEHOLE

$60

CATEGORY: Non-fiction, history

ISBN: 978-0-9951431-9-7

THEMA: NHM, 3M, 1MBN, 5PB-NZ-A

BIC: HBJM, 3J, 1MBN

BISAC: HIS004000

PUBLISHER: Massey University Press

IMPRINT: Massey University Press

PUBLISHED: September 2022

PAGE EXTENT: 504

FORMAT: Limpbound with jacket

SIZE: 230mm x 163 mm

RIGHTS: World

AUTHOR'S RESIDENCE: Te Whanganui-a-Tara Wellington

A RICH AND COMPLEX STORY SHAPED BY LAND AND SEA

The many bays, coves and steeply rising hills of the Marlborough Sounds create some of New Zealand's most glorious, but challenging, environments.

Māori carved out a living there over hundreds of years, but as Pākehā settlers farmed, milled, mined, fished and chased the tourist dollar they transformed the Sounds. Māori lost their land, language and way of life. Both groups had to overcome obstacles that ranged from the merely difficult to the nearly impossible, but Māori faced additional systemic legal and economic barriers.

History continues to play out here in complex ways — Māori and Pakeha, land and sea, boom and bust, locals and tourists. These multiple strands are brought together for the first time in a wide-ranging, engrossing and richly illustrated account of the Sounds and its resourceful and resilient peoples.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Helen Beaglehole is a writer, editor and historian who has spent many years sailing and exploring in the Marlborough Sounds. She has written books for children and adults and has contributed to the New Zealand Dictionary of National Biography and Te Ara, New Zealand's online encyclopedia. She lives in Wellington.

SALES POINTS

- Wide-ranging survey of the history and settlement of the Marlborough Sounds
- Richly illustrated with over 80 photographs and maps
- A wide market: the Sounds is a popular destination, especially for South Islanders and Wellingtonians